Hi Tracey,

I did elaborate during the call, and the highlights are:

- Hot shots are insecticides used to treat fruit flies and house flies.
- People are not meant to be around hot shots as it is an organophosphate and attacks the nervous system.
- Partners have been abusing hot shots in stores, using up to ten hot shots on top of the menu board counters.
- DOH are aggressively citing hot shots in stores and comes with a hefty violation points.
- This has been discussed a few times before and the situation was improving.
- Unfortunately, pest control recently found a hot shot located in the pastry case, under the bagels.

- This is a serious condition, that can cause food cross contamination and food illness.
- I sent the pictures and store number to the RD and DM, and the issue is being addresses.

Thank you,

Hello Rami

Not certain if you had the opportunity to elaborate on this tonight as I had to jump off the last few moment.
Please share your talking points and action items with the team.
